1. INTRODUCTION
Comics are one of the mass media that can be considered quite effective in conveying messages, compared to other mass communication media. Comics are an art form that uses still images arranged in such a way as to form a story. Picture in this case, drawing a cartoon character (character can be a person, animal, plant or an inanimate object). Usually, comics are printed on paper and accompanied by text. Comics can be published in various forms, ranging from strips in newspapers, published in magazines, to separate books. There are also those who argue that comics are a world of speech, a series of pictures that tell a story.

This image has the same value as reading maps, symbols, diagrams, and so on. There are many types of comic terms, some call it cergam (pictured story), gamer (picture storytelling), and in the academic field of comics it is known as sequential art. Japan knows comics as Manga, and in China it is known as manhua, while in Korea people call it manhwa. From the genre (genre), we can distinguish comics into: superhero comics, romance comics, horror comics, adventure comics, crime comics, comedy comics, humorous comics, action comics, science fiction comics, detective story comics, and comic strips.

Comics in modern times are more commercial in nature and tell a lot of fictional stories, while ancient comics tell a lot about social and spiritual life at that time which tended to be realistic and contain many historical elements, and these comics also became the forerunner to comic world, especially in Indonesia now.

Indonesian comics at the outset can be divided into two broad categories, namely comic strips and comic books, referred to in Marcell Boneff, 2008. Meanwhile, the definition of comic strip itself is an image or series of images containing a story. Comic strips are written and drawn by a cartoonist, and published regularly (usually daily or weekly) in newspapers and on the Internet. In the United Kingdom and Europe, comic strips are also serially published in comic magazines, while the story of a strip is sometimes three or more pages long.

Comics have now developed as a medium in constructing discourse or public opinion that can describe how people live. Comic artists can develop various criticisms and convey information.
People can also receive information without struggling with theory. Comics that are usually packed with humor and a variety of interesting images are easier to accept. The researcher intends to discuss the comic strip "Si Juki vs Dompet Blank" written by Yahya & Dede Arkhan or better known as Faza Meonk.

The comic strip "Si Juki vs. Dompet Blank" analyzes critical discourse reviews which is a perspective in taking attitudes in discourse studies involving various disciplines, ranging from discourse analysis, psychology, history, social science to analyze. Critical discourse analysis or abbreviated as AWK, is a new method in social and cultural science research. In January 1991, a symposium which was held for two days in Amsterdam, was attended by several figures including; T. Van Dijk, N. Fairclough, G. Kress, T. Van Leeuwen and R. Wodak, are considered to have inaugurated Critical Discourse Analysis (AWK) as a research method in the social and cultural sciences.

According to Van Dijk, discourse analysis has a systematic and descriptive theoretical purpose, namely the structure and written oral discourse are seen as textual objects and socio-cultural practices between actions and relationships. The model used by Teun A. Van Dijk commonly referred to as social cognition is adopted from a field approach of social psychology. For Van Dijk, research on texts is not only seen on the basis of the text alone, because the text is only the result of production practice which of course needs to be observed. So that the formation of a text can describe the structure and process.

"Departing from the above background, it is necessary to carry out more in-depth research on this aspect of the comic story, in order to understand what message is actually being conveyed through the written comics, using a Teun A. Van Dijk discourse approach, as well as to give appreciation to the work of a media worker who of course also has a certain ideology in viewing the reality of life, which is then used as an issue to be highlighted to the public. Based on the explanation above, the researchers chose the title "Analysis of the SiJuki Comics vs. Empty Wallet. Review of the Critical Discourse of Teun A Van Dijk".

2. LITERATURE REVIEW

2.1 Discourse Concept

Discourse Theory Etymologically, the term discourse as quoted by Dedy Mulyana comes from the Sanskrit wac/wak/vak. Which means 'to say' or to speak'. Then the word changes into discourse. The word 'ana' which is behind is a form of suffix (suffix) which means to distinguish (nominalize).

Thus, the word discourse can be interpreted as a word or speech. In the ancient Javanese Indonesian dictionary written by Wojowasito there is the word waca which means to read, wacaka means to say and the word discourse means to say.

Discourse analysis or discourse analysis is a way or method to examine the discourse contained or contained in communication messages both textually and contextually. Discourse analysis is concerned with the content of communication messages, some of which are in the form of text. In addition, discourse analysis can also allow us to track variations in the ways used by communicators (writers, speakers, directors) in an effort to achieve certain goals or purposes through messages containing certain discourses conveyed.

2.2 Teun A. Van Dijk's Discourse Analysis Framework

In fact, many discourse analysis models were introduced and developed by experts Eriyanto (2001) in his discourse analysis book, for example, presenting discourse analysis models developed by Theo Van Leeuwen (1986), Sara Milles (1992), Norman Fairclough (1998), and Teun A. Van Dijk (1998). Of the many discourse analysis models, the Van Dijk model is the most widely used model. Maybe because Van Dijk has elements that can be applied practically.

The model used by Teun A. Van Dijk is often referred to as "social cognition". This term is actually adopted from the field approach of social psychology, especially to explain the structure and process of forming a text. The name of this kind of approach cannot be separated from the characteristics of the approach introduced by Van Dijk.

According to Van Dijk, research on discourse is not enough just to be based on analysis or text alone, because text is only the result of a production practice which he must also die. Both text structure, social cognition, and social context are integral parts in Van Dijk's framework.

2.3 Comic

Media is a tool or means used to convey messages from communicators to audiences. There are some psychologists who view that in human-to-human communication, the most dominant media in communication are the five human senses, such as the eyes and ears. The messages received by the five human senses are then processed in the human mind to control and determine their attitude towards something, before being expressed in action. (Cangara, 2010:123)

Communication media are intermediary tools in the process of delivering the contents of the statement (message) from the communicator to the communicant or the process of delivering feedback (feedback) from the communicant to the communicator. Communication media that we often encounter in daily life such as leaflets, leaflets, banners, billboards, billboards, posters, newspapers, bulletins, magazines, radio, television, and films. (Cangara, 2010:127)

Comic is an art form that uses still images that are arranged in such a way as to form a story.
